

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A magnetic head slider or a precise positioning actuator is electrically and mechanically connected to a suspension, by performing molten-solder connections using solder balls with cores that will not melt even at a solder-melting temperature.